That Frivolous Miss Bell

By JEANNETTE SCOTT BENTON

Copyright, 1905, by Jeannette Scott Benton

Professor Leigh, the principal of the high school, was in attendance at the school board meeting by request of the board. The principal subject under discussion was the hiring of an assistant Latin teacher in the high school.

"Of course, professor, you understand," the chairman explained, "that the necessity for a new teacher rising as it does in the school year gives us very little choice. The board, however, has decided unanimously upon Miss Daisy Bell, room 7, of the Oak street school. What do you think of her?"

Professor Leigh frowned. "My actual knowledge of Miss Bell's attainments is limited, but she is a frivolous looking young woman. To me she seems a rather impossible Latin teacher. Her name, Daisy Bell, in the faculty would almost lower its tone."

He glanced around and caught the covert amusement of his auditors, his lean young face set in stern disapproval. To Professor Leigh life was "real and earnest."

He writhed under the frivolity and laxity of those latter days. The lightness and love of display shown by the majority of his feminine acquaintances annoyed him. Women were sadly degenerating, in his opinion, and he was only thirty years old.

"I know," he said stiffly, "my objection is unusual, but the girls of the high school run to too much frivolity themselves. Their teachers should be of another type, if there is any. They even have a way of wearing their hair in a sort of arch over their faces so that in profile you can barely see the tips of their noses. That Miss Bell wears hers very much the same way."

The board relaxed decidedly. Professor Leigh regarded them in stern perplexity.

"I confess," the chairman remarked, "that we have not particularly considered Miss Bell's appearance. She graduated last year with unusual Latin recommendations. As for her ability as a teacher, the work in room 7 of the Oak street school is not easy, and she has succeeded there. Of course if she is not satisfactory, professor, other arrangements can be made for next year."

The professor arose. "My objections to Miss Bell," he said, "are of course theoretical." He smiled a smile of such entire confidence and good fellowship that it was easy to understand his hold on the high school in spite of his priggishness. "And if you say 'try her' I shall do it with confidence in your judgment."

Which was not quite true, for every day his soul arose in disapproval against Miss Daisy Bell. "What could there be in a girl with such a pink and white face fluffed around with such a mop of yellow hair and such an impression of frills and fancy things all about her?" He trembled, too, for her influence in the school. The girls seemed so infatuated with her. How could she teach Latin? It was almost against natural law.

Miss Bell grew red and white under his scrutiny in the Latin class, for he came in frequently during the first month's recitations.

At last he was obliged to admit that she could teach Latin fairly well, but he resented it. He hated inconstancy.

She gradually became the trial of his life, and he always tried to make her as inconspicuous as possible. During the annual visitation of teachers he skillfully steered them away from Miss Daisy's classes. She was a blot on the dignity and high standing of his beloved school. It would shake the confidence of any sensible person to see a girl like that on the staff of teachers.

As for Miss Daisy, she tried her best to please the stern young man. She didn't have any trouble with her classes. The girls were obedient and the boys were gentlemen.

But she could not understand Professor Leigh. She curled her hair in its prettiest fashion and worked her hardest in school, but she could not melt his uncompromising disapproval. She trembled for her position the following year. It meant bread and butter and paying what she owed for her course at the university.

In view of this contingency her present bread and butter was of the cheapest, and she turned and pressed and darned her frivolous little frocks and stuck a bow here and trimmed in a lacy frill there to hide the bad spots that the bright spring sunshine was making so apparent.

It was nearly 9 o'clock one evening when Miss Daisy discovered that by some mischance she had overlooked part of her Latin examination papers. They had to be graded that night, so she threw a little shawl over her shoulders. "I will have to go over after them," she murmured. She ran across the street to the dark, silent building.

The hall looked terribly big and dark, and she fairly flew up the stairs into the Latin recitation room. She lighted several matches and finally succeeded in finding the missing papers. The shadows plied menacingly in the corners, and she was sure she heard a noise somewhere in the building.

She fled in a little panic from the room to the stairs. Halfway down she saw some one advancing toward her from the gloom below. She gave a little shriek, then slipped and fell headlong. She heard a smothered exclamation; then some one caught her firmly. Faint with terror, she tried to regain her feet.

"There, little one, there. Don't be frightened, dear," a voice entreated—Professor Leigh's voice.

In her relief and the reaction she clung to him like a frightened child, half sobbing.

He held her closer, his face almost against hers. "Are you hurt?" he asked anxiously.

Then, after a minute, his clasp relaxed, and she slipped quickly away from him.

"I had no idea it was you," she said finally in a small voice.

"I tried to tell you," he answered softly.

Another moment of silence followed; then the girl sped down the hall and out of the open door.

The professor leaned against the banister and passed his hand over his eyes. A new heaven and a new earth had opened up before him.

He knew now that all his disapproval and condemnation had been a fight against himself, not her. He dared to think now of the stories he had heard of her gallant fight for her university education; how hard she had worked and how he had persecuted her. Poor little thing! And all because he was afraid of himself. What a narrow minded bully he was anyway—and now?

He could not answer that. He went out into the spring night slowly with bent head. He had forgotten utterly the errand that sent him to the schoolhouse. He even forgot to lock the door.

A very erect, pink cheeked little assistant Latin teacher and a very self conscious professor came into the assembly room the next morning. Both the professor and Miss Daisy were in a rather bewildered state of mind.

Miss Daisy shed no more tears in secret over her endangered position. In fact, a little smile was more apt to come. Whenever the professor's eyes met hers there was a look in them that sent the red flaming into her cheeks. Possibly he could call any one "dear" when she fell unexpectedly into his arms, but she did not believe it.

So she dreamed those last few spring weeks, while the professor walked miles in his despair.

On the night of commencement they found themselves face to face in a dark little lobby behind the opera house stage.

The professor barred her way. "Miss Daisy," he said entreatingly, "you are going to the country, are you not? May I come out to see you next week?"

"Yes," she answered softly, extending a small hand. "Goodby," she half whispered.

He took her hand. "Goodby," he said. "Goodby," he repeated. Then he suddenly stooped and kissed her.

"Forgive me," he cried in the depth of contrition, but still holding her fast. "I love you so. You must know it."

"If I do it is pretty nearly telepathy," she murmured.

When the chairman of the board of education asked Professor Leigh if he still had any objection to Miss Bell he actually blushed, because the frivolous woman had issued an ultimatum that she would teach until her debts were paid, and his objections from being theoretical had become entirely personal. Still, they were not of a nature to be confided to the chairman, so he remarked half heartedly that she was a very good teacher and if she wanted the position she could hardly be refused it.

A moment later one of his friskiest juniors thrust her pompadoured little head in the door, then withdrew in confusion at the sight of the chairman, and he smiled quite a benevolent smile after her. The professor was beginning to take a different view of the world and things pertaining to it—things feminine in particular.

The Earliest Surnames.

The earliest surnames were probably those bestowed by the Romans and Greeks, though it may be said that the Jews of a still earlier date had surnames to some extent. In most cases, however, the surnames of the Hebrews were tribal and not permanent, as are those of today. The very earliest surnames in the modern sense of that term date from the middle ages, when nobles were known by the name of their domains and common people by the name of their dwelling places. A great many surnames were bestowed on account of personal peculiarities, such as Long, Short, Stout, Stoop, Small, etc., others on account of trade, such as Saddler, Smith, Baker, Weaver, Fowler, Gardner, etc. A third class took names from the places where they resided. Examples in this class are John Hill and John Underhill, the first John living on the hill and the second in the little valley under the bluff. There were few, if any, surnames in England prior to the time of the Norman conquest, and in Ireland they did not become common until 1465. The German Jews did not use surnames until about 1825.

Laura's Lover.

Petrarch, the great Italian poet, who lived from 1304 to 1374, met Laura, the golden haired French beauty, on April 6, 1327, in the Church of St. Clara, in Avignon, and fell at once deeply and permanently in love with her. She was then nineteen years old and the wife of Hugues de Sade. For ten years Petrarch lived near her in the papal city and met her frequently in church and in society. It was then that he sang the praises of her charm and loveliness in those sonnets which are so eloquent of his devotion. Laura was not insensible to a worship such as had made the Emperor Charles IV. beg to be allowed to kiss her forehead, but she kept the passionate poet at a proper distance and rebuked him sternly on the only occasion on which he ventured to avow his love. After her death he withdrew from Avignon and ended his days in Italy.

BABES IN THE WOOD.

A Seventeenth Century Incident In the State of Maine.

In 1679 James Adams of York became affronted with one of his neighbors, Henry Simpson, and determined to avenge himself upon two of Simpson's children, whose ages were six and nine years. In a solitary place four or five miles from the dwelling houses of the inhabitants he built of logs beside a ledge of perpendicular rocks a pen or pound several feet high, with walls inclined inward from bottom to top. After he had built this he decoyed the children into the woods under a pretense of searching for birds' nests and caused them to enter within the pound, where he left them confined to perish. The place has since been called the Devil's Invention.

The children were soon missed, and the alarmed inhabitants searched for them more than forty-eight hours. The boys, when aware of their wretched situation, made various attempts to get out, and at length, by digging away with their hands the surface of the earth underneath one of the bottom logs, effected their escape. They wandered in the woods three days, being at last attracted to the seashore by the noise of the surf, where they were found.

The depraved criminal was condemned to have thirty stripes well laid on, to pay the father of the children £5, the treasurer £10, besides fees and charges of the prison, and remain a close prisoner during the court's pleasure or till further order. The same month he recognized before two of the judges, "conditioned to send him, within twenty-one days, out of the jurisdiction."

GENTLEMEN OF ENGLAND.

How Their Claims Were Established In the Middle Ages.

A curious meeting was held in Lyons on Jan. 4, 1699. The royal commissioners solemnly sat in council to decide the question if lawyers and doctors could be regarded as gentlemen. It proved too hard a problem for the wise heads, and the doctors and lawyers themselves were summoned to prove their right to gentility. The matter was settled to the satisfaction of the professional parties.

In the middle ages of England heralds went through the counties to examine into the claims of landholders to be called gentlemen. There is in existence an interesting list of the disqualified, and one reads today the shame of a certain Thomas Robbins who failed to establish the title and was writ among the ignoble. Charles Anscote, a representative of one of the oldest families, is registered as "entided to be styled a gentleman, although worth not more than £500."

Brooke, an old writer, has given the world his opinion of what constitutes a gentleman, and his definition has never been excelled:

"The character, or, rather, quality, of a gentleman does not in any degree depend on fashion or mode or state or opinion; neither does it change with customs, climates or ages. But, as the spirit of God alone can inspire it, so it is that quality of heart which is the same yesterday, today and forever."

Houses In Ceylon.

The natives of the interior of Ceylon finish walls and roof with a paste of slaked lime, gluten and alum, which glazes and is so durable that specimens three centuries old are now to be seen. In Sumatra the native women braid a coarse cloth of palm leaves for the edge and top of the roof. Many of the old Buddhist temples in India and Ceylon had roofs made out of cut stone blocks, hewed timber and split bamboo poles. Uneven planks—cut from the old and dead palm trees, seldom from living young trees—are much used in the Celebes and Philippines. Shark skins form the roofs for fishermen in the Andaman islands.

Who would exchange the merry noise of children at play, with the childless home where the clock tick can be heard hour after hour in the dull silence? But there are a great many who would like to people the silent house with the children that fate has refused them. Fate is often in this case only another word for ignorance. Many a glad mother dates her happiness from the day she first began the use of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It often happens that with the cure of female weakness and the establishing of the delicate womanly organs in sound health, the way is opened for the joy of motherhood. "Favorite Prescription" is a specific for the chronic ailments peculiar to women. It cures them perfectly and permanently.

No other medicine can do for women so much as "Favorite Prescription." Do not therefore let any other medicine be palmed off on you as "just as good."

"Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, opium cocaine or other narcotic. It is strictly a temperance medicine.

"I can truly say your medicine is a friend of mine," writes Mrs. Arthur Bratt, of Amherstburg, Ontario, Canada. "I am mother of four children and suffered greatly at times of birth of first three. When three months along with the last one I began to think of trying some medicine to ease those terrible pains, and asked our doctor whether there was anything he could give me to lessen labor pains. He said there was nothing that could help me. I then thought I would write to Dr. Pierce. He advised me to take his 'Favorite Prescription.' I started to take it at fourth month. I was very weak, had heart trouble and would faint away two or three times a day. Our doctor could not help me and life was a drag. I would often say, oh, if I could only die in one of these spells; but I took five bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and felt better every way. Got along well at the time of delivery. I had heard of painless childbirth, and I thought it must be a good medicine that would help these pains, but I know now for myself, and can not tell it plain enough. Your 'Favorite Prescription' is the best medicine as we mothers know. I advise my friends to try it. Baby is now four months old and is a strong healthy boy."

What Women's Clubs are Accomplishing

THERE is a general concession now on the part of even the most skeptical that women's clubs are a success. They are no longer in the experimental stage, but have set forth their utility by "doing things." They are today very valuable institutions and their establishmemt all over the country makes their effect and influence far-reaching. Their good effect on the individual cannot be questioned, and many a hitherto ordinary woman with a limited horizon has become broad-minded and capable through her club associations. The effect on the home is highly beneficial, and the little time devoted to club life is well spent. No woman neglects her home and children for her club, but the club is the source of much good that comes into our homes of today. The homes and children of our club women are as a rule above the average. The homes are attractive and the children show evidence of good taste, which has been unmistakably created by mothers of culture and refinement. Boys are endowed with the right idea of civic improvements, and in the homes of club women will grow up men who will be the wise and goodly city councilmen of the future. So the good that accrues from women's clubs is not a things of today, but ensures a future that is most promising.

Women's interest, through their clubs, in educational matters tend to stimulate our schools and raise the standards therein. Hitherto children were dumped in upon teachers as if mothers wanted to get a respite from them during the hours of school, and there being no sympathy between teacher and parent, and more between parent and children in matters educational, teachers found their tasks most difficult, for the proper interest was not present. Now, in many of our towns and cities, club women mothers have so interested themselves in the schools and in their children as school children, that fine results have been accomplished. Teachers have become more painstaking, children better disciplined, more conscientious and pride-loving. The mother who is in sympathy with the school children of school age must be most energetic, tireless and painstaking, for more is required of the mother of children of school age than of the mother of infants. There is more tax on her tact and brain, but she is an invaluable unit in the community where she lives. Many mothers understood the good they might do along these lines before the day of women's clubs, but they lacked the incentive, and so it is the clubs that crystallized these ideas.

To be a bookworm does not make a man a bright scholar, and Professor James of the Northwestern University realizes this fact when he prescribes newspaper reading for his students in American history It is surprising, the number of people who pretend to be well posted, and yet scarcely ever read the daily papers. An all round education should include a knowledge of current events. One must be informed as to what is going on about him, otherwise he does not really live. It is neccessary to know of the past, and history is a great essential, but the present, as chronicled in the newspapers, should not be neglected. University students are old enough to segregate the vital from the sensational in our modern journals, and their purpose in not reading them is certainly not ethical. As a matter of fact it is safe to say that there is no purpose in the fact, but only indifference or neglect. For many of our college students the present affairs are just good history stuff, to which they will pay no attention until made up, and so they forever live in the past.

JUST what San Francisco faces up, now that the Schmitz wave has swept over her, is a question. If Schmitz has been as corrupt as has been alleged and the voter has countenanced it by reelecting him, we may expect a wide open town, flaunting indecency and graft into the faces of the respectable minority. There is a possibitity, however, that Schmitz and Union Labor will try and give a good administration, knowing that they are under the closest surveillance. Will they punish or astonish the vanquished?

FOOTBALL should be regulated so there will be less danger to the players with as much spectacular amusement to the onlookers. This is a problem that ought to be solved before another season is passed. Football is one of the best games in athletics on account of the exercise of mentality and judgment required, but the clash between the good it does and the danger involved is evident.

ANDREWS, the suicide-murderer, is an extreme type of the moral pervert and a study in criminology. Verily, "the wages of sin are death," but though he made his quietus and cheated the law, there must be a more severe and inevitable punishment awaiting him in that "undiscovered country" to which be has journeyed.

Constitutional Questions Involved

The Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati "Commercial Tribune" writes: "As the time for the beginning of the next session of Congress approaches, it is becoming plainly apparent that there will be considerable difficulty in securing a majority of both houses for any particular plan of railway legislation. The principal difficulty to be overcome is not the opposition of those who do not believe that any additional railway legislation of any character is needed, but it is the wide diversity of views among those who advocate different plans.

"There are advocates of legislation to increase Governmental supervision over transportation charges who believe that the enactment of the Esch-Townsend bill or any other similar measure would be a mere waste of energy on the part of Congress, for the simple reason that, in their opinion, it is beyond the constitutional power of Congress to enact such a law.

"Aside from the very serious constitutional question of whether the Government can prescribe rates to or from any part of the country on any other than a mileage basis, some good constitutional lawyers doubt very much whether the Commission could fix rates at all under a law along the lines of the Esch-Townsend bill.

"The Supreme Court might hold that it was not within the constitutional power of Congress to confer upon the Commission authority to do more than to prescribe the maximum rates that might be charged, leaving the carriers and shippers to agree upon any rates below the maximum."

Pretty Girl Becomes a Bride

Miss Jessie R. Wisecarver of Ukiah, who has often visited her relatives here, the Burris', was married in San Francisco on Satday to William Bruner of Redding.

Miss Wisecarver has been raised from childhood by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hopper of Ukiah. Mr. Hopper is a son of Thos. Hopper, the well-known capitalist.

There was some opposition to the match, but Miss Wisecarver wedded the man of her choice despite family objections, and with her husband is now on a wedding tour. The bride is a very pretty girl and has many friends throughout this valley.

Death of an Infant.

Bernice Fleischman, an infant two-month's old, died at Lawrence Villa last Thursday of pneumonia. The little one was here with her mother, who was spending her vacation at the Villa. The sorrowing parents took the body to San Francisco for burial.

Impoverished Soil

Impoverished soil, like impoverished blood, needs a proper fertilizer. A chemist by analyzing the soil can tell you what fertilizer to use for different products.

If your blood is impoverished your doctor will tell you what you need to fertilize it and give it the rich, red corpuscles that are lacking in it. It may be you need a tonic, but more likely you need a concentrated fat food, and fat is the element lacking in your system.

There is no fat food that is so easily digested and assimilated as

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil

It will nourish and strengthen the body when milk and cream fail to do it. Scott's Emulsion is always the same; always palatable and always beneficial where the body is wasting from any cause, either in children or adults.

We will send you a sample free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

Purchase of Ferry Boats by Electric Company.

It is reported that the electric railroad company which is building a net-work of lines in this county towards the McNear's Point terminal has purchased the Key route ferry boats San Jose and Yerba Buena to handle the traffic between McNear's Point and San Francisco.

The electric roads throughout the county are destined to give a fine and fast service to the metropolis.

WAGON OVERTURNS, INJURING MAN

L. Della Maggioria Pinned Down Under Vehicle and Has Rib Broken

L. Della Maggioria, one of the proprietors of the Sonoma Soda Works, met with an accident on Tuesday near Glen Ellen which was attended with serious results. The man was driving his soda wagon along the road near the Gender place above Glen Ellen when the vehicle in some manner tipped over, throwing its occupant from his seat and pinning him down beneath.

Della Maggiora was unable to extricate himself from beneath the heavy wagon, and lay there for fully an hour in a semi-conscious state before he was discovered by passers by. Finally a crippled man came along, but being unable to get Maggioria out he went for assistance and the injured man was released from his predicament

He was brought to town on the afternoon train and taken to Dr. Byron, who found that he had fractured one rib and that his body was badly larcerated and bruised with possibilities of internal injuries.

The horses which were attached to the wagon broke loose and ran away. One went directly home, and the other was caught by passers by near the scene of the accident.

Della Maggioria will be laid up several weeks.

The Woman's Club Held Meeting

The Sonoma Valley Woman's Club met last Friday afternoon and there was a good attendance of the enthusiastic ladies who comprise this organization. A report on the entertainment given for the benefit of the library showed that about thirty dollars had been the net proceeds of the affair. Miss Alice Humphreys was instructed to purchase juvenile books for the public library with the money. Miss Humphreys also reported a five dollar donation from Mrs. Martha Stearns, and announced her intention to purchase a standard set of books to that amount. A book shower party is also being talked of for some afternoon in the near future, when guests will be invited to tea and each will bring a book, which will go toward making the library larger and better.

The next meeting of the club will be a social one under the direction of the Plaza Section.

The Educational Section has been placed in charge of Mrs. F. T. Duhring, vice Mrs. Nolan, resigned. Mrs. Duhring, as chairman of this section, has some excellent plans along this line.

Mrs. P. N. Stofen was elected delegate to the convention, which meets in the new California Club building in San Francisco next week. Miss Stofen was named as her alternate. Mrs. Stofen and the club's president, Mrs. Robt. P. Hill will represent Sonoma at this big gathering of club women.

The Index-Tribune was awarded the contract to print picture postal cards of the fountain, which will shortly be put on sale by the club women, the proceeds of the sales to go toward keeping up and cleaning out the fountain.

Committees will be appointed on the 18th to arrange for the New Year's night ball, to be given by the club in Union Hall.

Catarrh Cannot be Cured

MONEY IN BANK FOR THE BONDS.

City Trustees Turn Over Bonds to Mrs. Stearns and Will Go Ahead With City Hall.

The City Trustees have turned over the $10,000 in municipal bonds to the buyer, Mrs. Martha Stearns, who formally received them this week. The money received for the bonds is now on deposit in the Sonoma Valley Bank and work will now be rushed on the new city hall. Bids have already been invited for the construction of the edifice and it will only be a short time when contracts are awarded and the new municipal structure will crown the general building activities which have been so apparent here for some time.

Minister's Wife Passes to Great Beyond

Rev. Mr. C. C. Cragin, pastor of the Congregational Church, has had the misfortune to lose his wife, who passed away at their home in Santa Clara county on Sunday.

Mr. Cragin was summoned to her bedside a few days ago and was with her to the last.

Deceased was a lady of culture and many beautiful traits of character. She was highly esteemed by all who knew her, and her coming to Sonoma was looked forward to with much pleasure.

Mr. Cragin, who has formed many friendships here since assuming the pastorship of the Congregational Church, has the sympathy of the community in his sorrow.

The funeral took place Wednesday in San Jose at 2 o'clock from the home on Hamilton avenue.

Mrs. Cragin was born at Foster, R. I., November 7, 1858, and died November 6, 1905, lacking one day of her fifty-seventh birthday. On December 4, 1869, she was married to the Rev. C. C. Cragin, who was also the captain of an artillery regiment in the Civil War. Four children were born to them: Charles Edward and William Remington, who have preceded her home, leaving one daughter, Alice Elizabeth, and a son, Albert Tillinghast, with her husband surviving her. She was a member of the First Congregational Church of this city, and for several years had occupied the home on Hamilton avenue.

The bereaved ones are upheld by the remembrance of an exquisitely unselfish wife and mother. As the wife of an earnest pastor she has given herself freely to the needs of others, and in the life of the parishes in which they have labored, she has left always the impress of her rare personality. She will be mourned, not alone by her family and the immediate friends in San Jose, but by a larger group throughout the state.

All matters in the Batchelor case went over until next Monday in the Superior Court of this county.

Garpe-Growers' Ball.

The annual Grape-Growers and Wine-Makers' ball will be given at Schieck Bros. winery near Glen Ellen, Saturday evening, December 16th. The floor managers will be R. G. Sutherland and J. H. Weise. A fine supper will be served and music will be furnished by Mrs. Alice Schieck's city orchestra. A grand time is promised and as these affairs are always big successes, a fine crowd will no doubt be present.

Chas. H. Robinson Dead.

Chas. H. Robinson, brother of Mrs. G. A. Goess of this place and Walter T. Robinson of San Francisco, died in the latter city October 29th. Deceased, who was 41 years of age, also leaves a wife to mourn his untimely taking off. The funeral was held under the auspices of the Elks and the remains cremated in Odd Fellows crematory.

The Fight

The fight held here last Saturday night was attended by a big crowd, who came to see the match between Jack Burke, the well-known middle-weight, and a Vallejo pugilist. There were four lively rounds, any one of which was equal to any round of the recent Britt-Nelson fight at Colma. The fight terminated in the Vallejo man being knocked out in the fourth round. It was a clever exhibition of "the game."

PERSONAL MENTION

Wm. Camm, the prominent Petaluma contractor, died at Glen Ellen Thursday afternoon as a result of a fall he received last week while at work on a building in that place. Concussion of the brain was the cause of death, Mr. Camm never having regained consciousness after the accident.

Deceased was a native of England and a prominent member of several fraternal organizations. He leaves a wife and sister, Mrs. Haskins of Petaluma, and the following children: J. L. Camm, Chas. Camm, Mrs. Sam. Martin, Mrs. W. F. Shattuck and Miss Bertha Camm.

Illustrated Lecture Here Wednesday Evening

Edwin Emerson, the war correspondent, who will lecture here Wednesday evening at Union Hall, comes highly reccommended by such men as David Starr Jordan of Stanford University and Wm. D. Armes of Berkeley. They have accorded him the following testimonials:

University of California,
Berkeley, July 7, 1905.

My Dear Mr. Emerson:

The lecture that you delivered last night before the faculty and students of the summer session was so highly appreciated by those present that I wish to give the students in our regular session the opportunity to hear it. The pictures were exceptionally fine and your story of thrilling interest.

The entertainment is generally considered the best of its kind ever given at this University. If you are to be in this vicinity about the middle of August, I shall be glad to arrange with you for its repetition.

Yours very truly,
Wm. D. Armes,
Chairman Musical and Dramatic Committee of the University of California.

Stanford University Cal.,
October 12, 1905.

Pond Lyceum Bureau,
New York City, N. Y.

Dear Sirs:

It was my pleasure to listen to the lecture of Edwin Emerson at Stanford in September. He had a very interesting story to tell about his experiences about Port Arthur, his lantern slides are very telling, and the lecture itself shows a degree of wit, vivacity, common-sense, and contagious good nature which makes it extremely interesting and attractive. Mr. Emerson would certainly satisfy any audience before which he might appear.

Very truly yours,
David Starr Jordan.

This lecture will be accompanied by moving pictures and will be of wonderful educational value to all who attend. Tickets, 25c and 35c; children, 15c. On sale at Simmons' drug store.

A Game of Bluff

[Original.]

I was at work in my office one day when I received a visit from a handsome, dashing looking fellow, dressed in the height of fashion, about thirty years old, whom I had never seen before. When asked what I could do for him he said that he wished me to bring suit against a wealthy young widow for $50,000 for breach of promise of marriage. Mrs. Fanny Bissell was twenty-five years old, rich, vivacious, pretty and a desperate flirt. Hamilton, my client, had met her during the summer. He found her a notorious coquette who did not scruple to engage herself to a dozen lovers at one time.

"It occurred to me," he said, "to punish her for such nefarious practices. It's not money I want. I've got all of it I need. Nevertheless I wish you to bring suit for $50,000."

I took the case, but before proceeding legally made inquiries about the principals. I learned that all the plaintiff had said about the defendant was true. I also found that Jack Hamilton, as his friends called him, had no better reputation in such matters than the woman he accused of lacerating his heart strings. I sent a polite note to Mrs. Bissell making the demand on behalf of my client, and she came to my office to see me. She was, or pretended to be, highly indignant with Hamilton, averring that she hardly remembered him, but she tried to find out from me what evidence he possessed in the shape of letters. Hamilton had confessed to me that he had not a scrap of written evidence, but expected me to make a bluff, and he would not blame me in case of defeat. I therefore informed her that I could not give her any information as to my client's side of the case—but she would, of course, remember what she had written Mr. Hamilton. With charming naivete and a lugubrious smile, she admitted that she had said and written a great many foolish things during the summer, and it would not be possible to say just what she had written any special admirer.

"Well," she said at the end of the interview, "I suppose I shall have to pay something. Must I pay it all?"

"Why not retain counsel and put in a defense?"

"Oh, dear, no! Have everybody laughing at me? Not by any means! I'd rather pay it all."

"Suppose you make an offer."

"Tell him I'll pay half."

She had scarcely left my office when Hamilton came into it. When I told him that the lady would settle out of court, paying $25,000, a look of disappointment crossed his face. I asked him if he didn't think the amount enough, and he replied it was equivalent to paying $25,000 rather than marry him.

"I suppose," he added lugubriously, "she thinks she's getting off cheap. Tell her that her offer is not accepted."

It was plain that money had nothing to do with the case—at least so far as my client was concerned—so I gave no advice, confining myself to obeying orders. Transmitting the refusal to the defendant, I received by way of reply an offer of $30,000. This was declined, and the amount offered was raised $5,000 at a time till the full amount claimed was reached, when Hamilton directed me to add a demand of $5,000 for counsel fees. I demurred at making such a charge, but he insisted, and I made the demand of Mrs. Bissell. She agreed to pay it, and I supposed the case was closed, but Hamilton demanded a written apology for trifling with his affections.

This demand was indignantly declined. Then Hamilton directed me to say to Mrs. Bissell that if she would meet him at my office and in my presence say that she regretted her flirtations with other men he would drop the case without the payment of any money whatever. To this, after a long delay, the widow assented.

The meeting was to take place at 3 o'clock on a certain afternoon. Hamilton asked me to stay away from my office at the hour the lady was expected—that is, to be late in coming. I left directions that when either of the two arrived he or she was to be shown into my private office. I arrived at half past 3. Hamilton and Mrs. Bissell had arrived and were so engaged with each other that they did not notice my coming. Indeed, they were clasped in each other's arms. I coughed to make them aware of my presence; they started and Hamilton came forward.

"You have won the case I wanted to win," he said, "and I will now explain. Having been one of a number of those with whom the defendant in this case had trifled I determined to withdraw without proceeding to a climax and sue for damages. I had no case, for Mrs. Bissell had never promised to be my wife. Indeed, I had never asked her. But she had promised so many that when I brought my bluff suit she naturally supposed I was one of her accepted suitors. If I have not punished her I have at least taken away the opportunity for her to do any more damage."

"Perhaps I may be allowed a word of explanation," said the blushing lady. "When the famous Jack Hamilton came among us—famous for his escapades and conquests—all the women said that if I had a game to play he would play me a more desperate one. But I made up my mind I would land him and I've done it."

"Having heard both your stories," I replied, "I have to inform you that you are as graceless a pair of scamps as I ever met. However, I am glad to have been instrumental in tying you up and keeping you from doing any further damage." ARTHUR D. BERWICK.

Tourist Excursion Parties to the East Over the Scenic Line of the World.

If you are going East and want to save money, yet travel with pleasure and comfort, it will pay you to investigate our Personally Conducted Tourist Excursions. These parties are in charge of a Manager, who accompanies the cars through to St. Louis, Chicago and the Atlantic Coast, and gives his personal attention to the welfare of each passenger in his charge. The schedules are arranged so as to pass through the world-famed scenery on the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad by daylight. Open-top Observation Cars (something entirely new) are free to all passengers. Let us know when you are going and we will be glad to give you full information about your trip, the lowest rates of fare and send you free of charge some handsomely illustrated books of travel.

Constipation

Health is absolutely impossible, if constipation be present. Many serious cases of liver and kidney complaint have sprung from neglected constipation. Such a deplorable conditon is unnecessary. There is a cure for it. Herbine will speedily remedy matters. C. A. Lindsay, P. M., Bronson, Fla. writes, Feb. 12, 1902: "Having used Herbine, I find it a fine medicine for constipation. 50c a bottle. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

Neuralgia Pains

Rheumatism, lumbago and sciatic pains yield to the penetrating influence of Ballard's Snow Liniment.

It penetrates to the nerves and bone and being absorbed into the blood, its healing properties are conveyed to every part of the body, and effect some wonderful cures. 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

Zangwill's Revenge.

While yet an obscure writer Israel Zangwill submitted to an American magazine a poem, which he received back in due course with the customary slip expressing the editor's great sorrow at his inability to make use of the contribution.

The manuscript found its way into a pigeonhole, to be resurrected some time later when fame had found him out. The poem was sold to the same magazine to which it had originally been sent, but this time the editor cabled a request to the author and paid a fancy price for it.

Best Liniment On Earth

Henry D. Baldwin, Supt. City Water Works, Shullsburg, Wis. writes, "I have tried many kinds of liniment, but I have never received much benefit until I used Ballard's Snow Liniment for rheumatism and pains. I think it the best liniment on earth." 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

Cured Consumption

Mrs. B. W. Evans, Clearwater, Kans., writes: "My husband lay sick for three months. The doctors said that he had quick consumption. We procured a bottle of Ballard's Horehound Syrup, and it cured him. That was six years ago. Since then we have always kept a bottle in the house. We cannot do without it. For coughs and colds it has no equal." 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. This is the most successful medicine in the world for bowel complaints, and is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea. Every bottle is warranted. For sale by Shoults & Co.

Hustling the Clergy.

A western newspaper man once connected with a journal in Denver was one day in conversation with his chief when a clerical looking gentleman entered the office.

"Sir," said he gravely, "I intend next Sunday to preach a sermon upon football, and it has occurred to me that an enterprising paper like yours would be pleased to have my manuscript. I have no doubt that any number of your readers would be glad to read it and"—

"All right, all right," interrupted the busy editor, "but you'll have to hustle it along. Get it in early—early, mind! Our sporting page is the first to close." —Harper's Weekly.

The Salt in the Ocean.

If the ocean did not have salt it would freeze somewhat more readily than it does now, but there would be no very marked difference. The ocean is prevented from freezing not so much by its salt as by its size and by its commotion. On account of its size large portions of it extend into warm climates at all seasons, and by reason of its great depth it is a vast storehouse of heat. Its currents distribute much warm water among the cold.—St. Nicholas.

Wealth of Words.

"He talks very interestingly," said one girl.

"Yes," replied the other, "but in all the stories I ever read the man who used lovely language was always poor and struggling. It doesn't seem a good sign to me."—Washington Star.

An Angel Once.

"Does it create a furore in your family when you go home late?" asked Bjones of his friend De Smith.

"No; it creates a fury," was the suggestive answer.—Chicago Record-Herald.

No Poison in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

From Napier New Zealand, HERALD: Two years ago the Pharmacy Board of New South Wales, Australia, had an analysis made of all the cough medicines that were sold in that market. Out of the entire list they found only one that they declared was entirely free from all poisons. This exception was Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, made by the Chamberlain Medicine Company, Des Moines, Iowa, U. S. A. The abscence of all narcotics makes this remedy the safest and best that can be had; and it is with a feeling of security

Still In the Nobility.

Neighbor—How did your daughter's marriage with that count turn out? Mrs. Brickrow—Her last letter states that he has spent all her money, and she is taking in washing; but, then, I presume, she washes only for the nobility.

Evolution.

"Has he changed his style of living much since he inherited this vast wealth?"

"No; simply changed from secondhand clothes to secondhand dishes and furniture."—Life.

Real Progress.

"How is father getting on with his riding lessons?"

"Very well. We children are allowed to watch him now."—Tales From Fliegende Blatter.

Humility hath depressed many a genius to a hermit, but never raised one to fame.—Shenstone.

When You Have a Bad Cold

You want a remedy that will not only give quick relief, but effect a permanent cure.

You want a remedy that will counteract any tendency toward pneumonia:

You want a remedy that will relieve the lungs and keep expectoration easy.

You want a remedy that is pleasant and safe to take.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy meets all of these requirements and for the speedy and permanent cure of bad colds stands without a peer. For sale by Shoults & Co.

Herb W. Edwards Injured

Herb W. Edwards of Des Moines, Iowa, got a fall on an icy walk last winter, spraining his wrist and bruising it is knees. "The next day," he says, "they were so sore and stiff I was afraid I would have to stay in bed, but I rubbed them well with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications all soreness had disappeared. I feel that this bottle of Pain Balm saved me several day's time, to say nothing of the suffering." This liniment is for sale by Shoults & Co.

You Can Make Money

by purchasing an interest in this big Cash Store. The people of the west know that this is the largest Mail Order House on the Pacific Coast, and the magnitude of our sales enable us to undersell our competitors. So we save our customers money and make money in so doing.

You Can Share our Profits

the Cash Store is yours to the extent that you invest. A fifty dollar investment gives you five shares of stock which we absolutely guarantee to bear interest at not less than 6 per cent. per annum. Besides, you will secure everything you require for eating, use and wear at owners' prices.

Think of the Saving that you will make every year on your household supplies alone by becoming a stockholder in this big profit sharing Cash Store. Besides, you get owners' rates on Furniture, Dry Goods, Clothing, Shoes—in fact everything that anyone needs in every walk in life. Then there is the annual income you earn from your investment which will be always greater than 6 per cent.

A Judicious Investment

you will never find a more profitable use for your money than by buying a partnership in this big profit sharing Cash Store. Every day you will realize its benefits in the money you save on household necessities. Even a fifty dollar investment gives you a material interest in every article that goes in or out of the greatest Cash Store Mail Order Business in the west.

Your Last Chance

to secure stock for $10.00 a share may be in this advertisement. This year's earnings will warrant an increase in the price of the stock—five years ago it sold for $3 a share. Hundreds of new customers are buying here every month. You are bound to make money from this investment. Perhaps your money is earning 3 per cent. in a Savings Bank. The bank may be safe, but it is no safer than this big, solid Cash Store which doubles the earning power of your money. If you are satisfied that this is the kind of investment that you've been looking for, just make draft, check or money order payable to SMITHS' CASH STORE, Inc., or Harper A. Smith, President. If you would like to know more of the Cash Store, call and and see us or mail this coupon today—it in no way obligates you.
